DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1, 2, and 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hughes et al (2004/054787).

Hughes discloses a hot water supply heat exchanger (Fig. 1) including a water pipe (14) forming a water passage and a refrigerant pipe (32) forming a refrigerant passage, the hot water supply heat exchanger being for heating water flowing through the water passage by a refrigerant flowing through the refrigerant passage (see abstract), an inlet part of the water passage having water of a predetermined temperature or less is provided with a heat transfer enhancer (52 in Fig. 4) or a heat transfer enhancement pipe section (52 in Fig. 4), the enhancer being spiral grooves formed in the inner surface of the water pipe (52 in Fig. 4), the refrigerant pipe being connected to the periphery of the water pipe (Fig. 1).

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Daikin (JP 2003-97898) in view of Hitachi (JP 9-72683).

Daikin discloses a hot water supply heat exchanger (Fig. 1) including a water pipe (9) forming a water passage and a refrigerant pipe (10) forming a refrigerant passage, the hot water supply heat exchanger being capable of heating water flowing through the water passage by a refrigerant flowing through the refrigerant passage, a plurality of heat exchanger units stacked one above another and connected to form continuous passages (Fig. 1), the refrigerant pipe being connected to the periphery of the water pipe (Fig. 1).

Daikin does not disclose an inlet part of the water passage being provided with a heat transfer enhancer, the heat transfer enhancer being spiral grooves. Hitachi discloses providing spiral grooves as a heat transfer enhancer in the inner surface of a heat exchange pipe. It would have been obvious in view of Hitachi to provide spiral grooves in the inner surface of the pipe of Daikin as a heat transfer enhancer, the motivation being to increase the rate of heat transfer.

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Boling, Ferraro, and Janssen are cited to show heat transfer coils.
